advance Hello. You have installed a graphics driver for Windows 7 from the name. You should go to the official page for the graphics driver, search for the manufacturer of the graphics card and download the Windows version of the graphics driver. Try to install the graphics driver again. A few days ago, the word leaked that TiVo was going to add a feature to its V6 box that would let users pause live TV on their DVR. While this sounds like an incredibly useful feature, the reality of the situation is that it was a rather silly rumor. TiVo, which does own an ad company, reportedly looked at the numbers of people who use the DVR (barely anyone), compared them to the number of people who have access to full-time DVRs and realized that there's not a huge market for a feature that people don't yet use much, and thus are unlikely to use much. So, with less than an actual market for the feature in mind, they decided to shut down the rumors and have not gone into the murky waters of trying
